Investigation on Continuing Medical Education Situation of 23 Medical Colleges in China

Ma Zhen

The questionnaire survey has been carried on in 23 medical colleges in order to understand continuing medical education situation in China, 23 medical colleges have special or multiple departments jointly responsible for continuing medical education; 21 medical colleges set up the rules and regulations in continuing medical education, accounting for 91.3%; 21 colleges, from 2008 to 2010, had declared programs of national continuing medical education, accounting for 91.3%, average over 30 projects per year. Professional and technical personnel preferred the colleges as continuing medical education organizer.

Medical colleges, as the main force for continuing medical education in China, play an important role in training medical technical personnel to the society. By making good use of the resource, they will carry out continuing medical education as an important task.

Ma Zhen
No. 38 Xueyuan Road, Haidian District, Beijing, China
Department of Continuing Education, Peking University Health Science Center
8610-82802256
Jijiaochu@126.com